Sligo Entrance and Pedestrian Gate

From a design circa 1840—1900

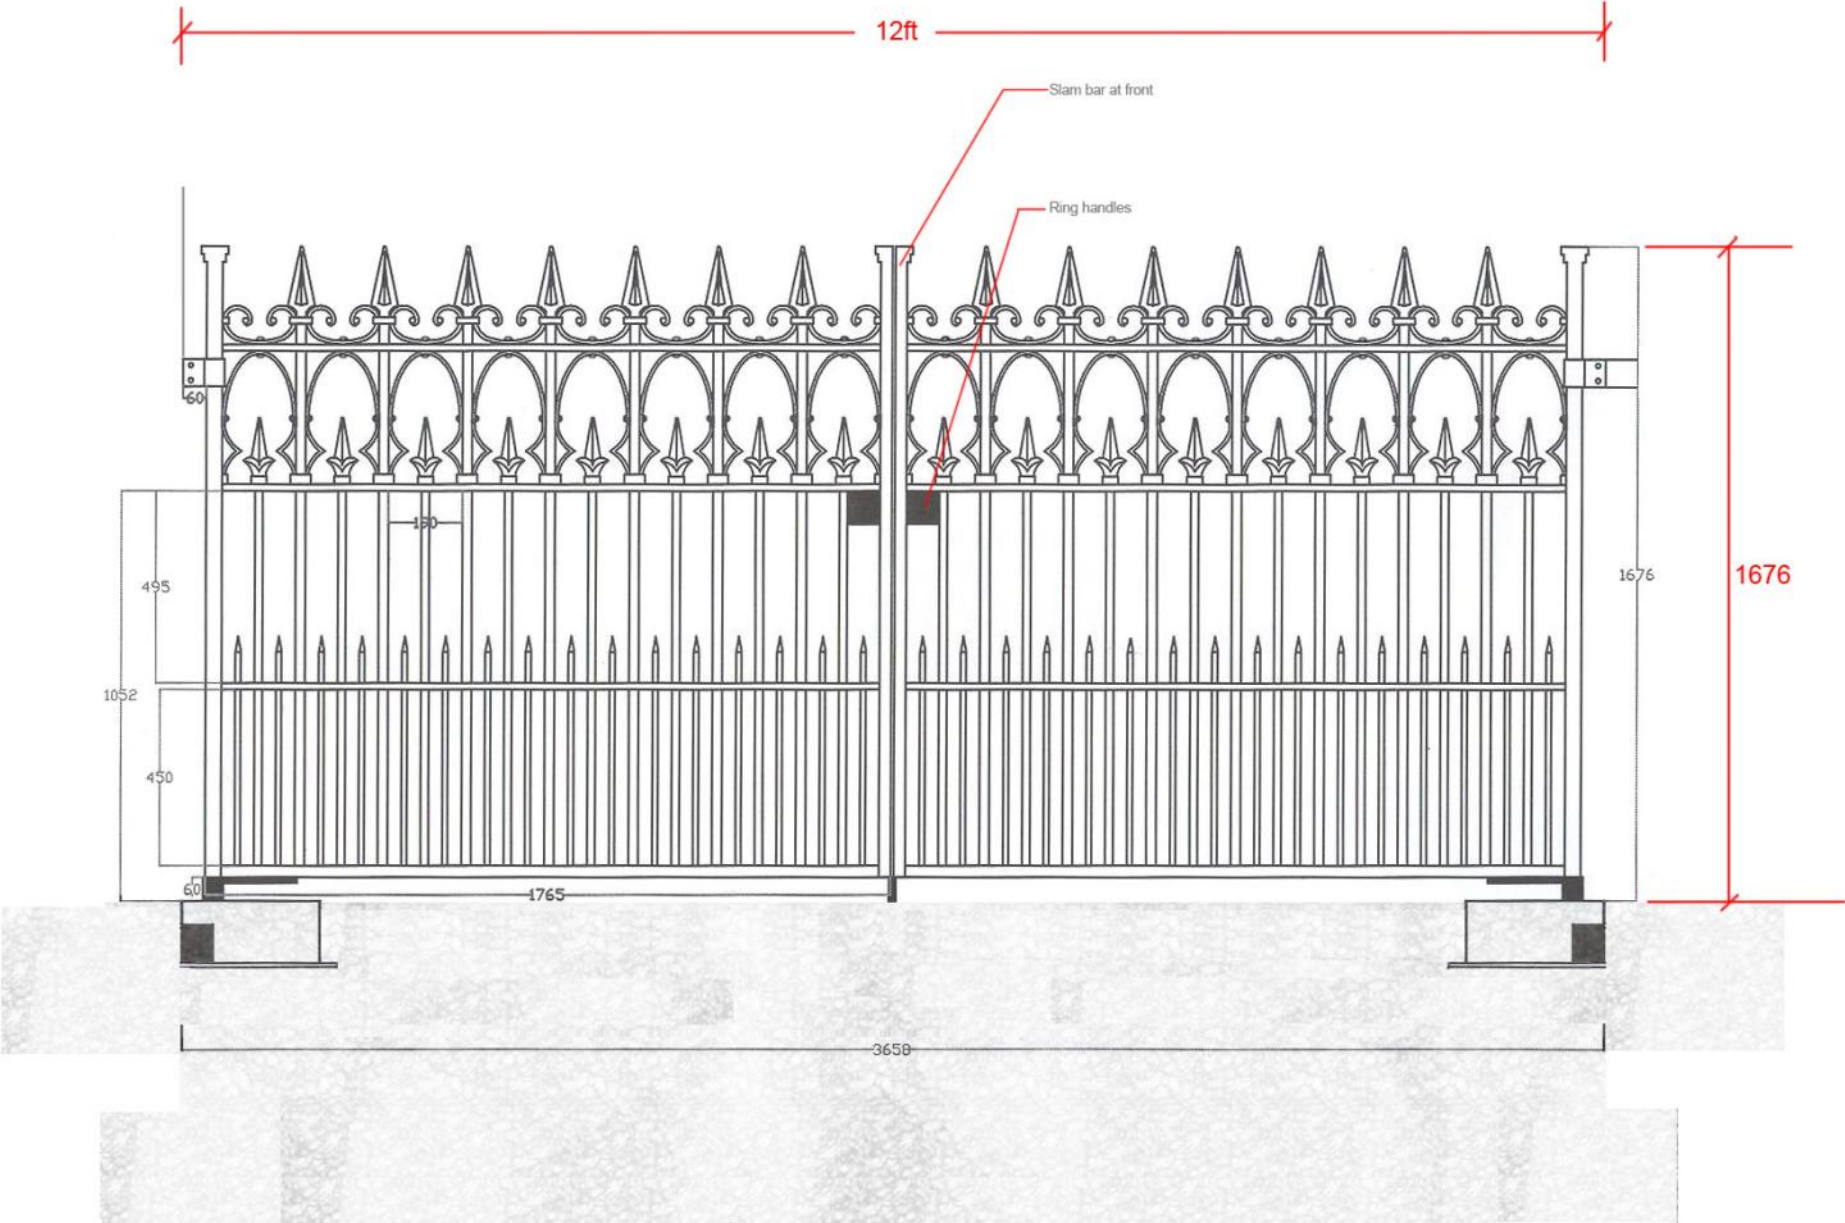

Inspired by original church gates from Sligo, Southern Ireland. They have a repeated arch pattern with prominent rivet work at intervals. Cast iron spear head finials along two rows and closely repeated dog bars at bottom.

The following pages show several projects and illustrate the process from design to production and installation. Every element is hand forged using traditional techniques and solid sections.

The main entrance gate was automated with a CAME frog kit and Telguard keypad. Installation was by Charlie Griffiths.
